

What is the STC?

- The Society for Technical Communication
- A professional organization that advances the arts and sciences of technical communication
- The largest organization of its type in the world with more than 14,000 members
- Open to anyone whose work makes technical information understandable and available to those who need it

Who are the sponsors?

The Northeast Ohio (NEO) and Southwestern Ohio (SWO) communities are two of the three STC communities in Ohio. These communities support more than 265 members from across the greater Cleveland/Akron and Cincinnati/Dayton areas.

When is it due?

- Due:
April 1, 2010
- Awarded:
May 1, 2010

$ 1,000 Scholarship Available to an Ohio Student Passionate about Technical Communication!

Wanted

One deserving student pursuing a degree or certificate in technical or scientific communication at an accredited Ohio educational institution or a permanent Ohio resident pursuing a degree or certificate in technical or scientific communication at any accredited U.S. educational institution

Reward

A $1,000 scholarship to be used for educational purposes

Sponsors

Northeast Ohio and Southwestern Ohio communities of the Society for Technical Communication

Purpose

To encourage local academic excellence, provide the profession with educated communicators, and promote awareness of and participation in the Society for Technical Communication

Requirements

- Completed application form
- Resume
- Certified copy of your latest transcript
- Letter of recommendation from a faculty member or coworker/manager in technical communication
- One- to three-page cover letter describing your career goals and significant achievements to date

To download an application, go to www.neostc.org/scholarship